TOTHE

FABLES.

PART THE FIRST.

The SHEPHERD and the PHILOSOPHER.

R EMOTE from cities liv'd a fwain,
Unvex'd with all the cares of gain;
His head was filver'd o'er with age,
And long experience made him fage;
In fummer's heat, and winter's cold,
He fed his flock, and penn'd the fold;
His hours in chearful labour flew,
Nor envy nor ambition knew:
His wisdom and his honest fame
Through all the country rais'd his name.

A deep philosopher (whose rules

Of moral life were drawn from schools)

The

The Shepherd's homely cottage fought, And thus explor'd his reach of thought.

Whence is thy learning? Hath thy toil
O'er books consum'd the midnight oil?
Hast thou old Greece and Rome survey'd,
And the vast sense of Plato weigh'd?
Hath Socrates thy soul resin'd,
And hast thou sathom'd Tully's mind?
Or, like the wise Ulysses, thrown,
By various sates, on realms unknown,
Hast thou through many cities stray'd,
Their customs, laws, and manners weigh'd?

The Shepherd modestly reply'd.

I ne'er the paths of learning try'd;

Nor have I roam'd in foreign parts

To read mankind, their laws and arts;

For man is practis'd in disguise,

He cheats the most discerning eyes;

Who by that search shall wifer grow,

When we ourselves can never know?

The little knowledge I have gain'd,

Was all from simple nature drain'd;

Hence my life's maxims took their rise,

Hence grew my settled hate to vice.

The daily labours of the bee

Awake my foul to industry.

Who can observe the careful ant,

And not provide for future want?

My dog (the trustiest of his kind)

With gratitude instames my mind:

I mark his true, his faithful way,

And in my service copy Tray.

In constancy and nuptial love,

I learn my duty from the dove.

The hen, who from the chilly air,

With pious wing protects her care;

And ev'ry fowl that slies at large,

Instructs me in a parent's charge.

From nature too I take my rule,

To shun contempt and ridicule.

I never, with important air.

In conversation over-bear.

Can grave and formal pass for wise,

When men the solemn owl despise?

My tongue within my lips I rein;

For who talks much, must talk in vain.

We from the wordy torrent sty:

Who listens to the chatt'ring pye?

The

12 INTRODUCTION.

Nor would I, with felonious flight,

By stealth invade my neighbour's right.

Rapacious animals we hate:

Kites, hawks, and wolves, deserve their fate.

Do not we just abhorrence find

Against the toad and serpent kind;

But envy, calumny and spite,

Bear stronger venom in their bite.

Thus ev'ry object of creation

Can furnish hints to contemplation;

And from the most minute and mean,

A virtuous mind can morals glean.

Thy fame is just, the sage replies;
Thy virtue proves thee truly wise.
Pride often guides the author's pen,
Books as affected are as men:
But he who studies nature's laws,
From certain truth his maxims draws;
And those, without our schools, suffice
To make men moral, good, and wise.

TO HIS HIGHNESS

WILLIAM

DUKE OF CUMBERLAND.

FABLE I.

The LION, the TYGER, and the TRAVELLER,

A CCEPT, young PRINCE, the moral lay,
And in these tales mankind survey;
With early virtues plant your breast,
The specious arts of vice detest.

Princes, like beauties, from their youth
Are strangers to the voice of truth;
Learn to contemn all praise betimes;
For slattery's the nurse of crimes:
Friendship by sweet reproof is shown,
(A virtue never near a throne);
In courts such freedom must offend,
There none presumes to be a friend.
To those of your exalted station
Each courtier is a dedication.

B 3

Must

R

Must I too slatter like the rest,
And turn my morals to a jest?
The Muse disdains to steal from those,
Who thrive in courts by sulsome prose.

But shall I hide your real praise, Or tell you what a nation fays? They in your infant bosom trace The virtues of your royal race; In the fair dawning of your mind man on the miles Difcern you gen'rous, mild, and kind: They fee you grieve to hear diffress, And pant already to redrefs. Go on, the height of good attain, Nor let a nation hope in vain. From hence we justly may presage The virtues of a riper age. True courage shall your bosom fire, And future actions own your fire, Cowards are gruel, but the brave Love mercy, and delight to fave.

A Tyger roaming for his prey,
Sprung on a Traviler in the way;

Ships there, are what numbers fell.

With mingled roar resounds the wood,

Their teeth, their claws distil with blood;

'Till vanquish'd by the Lion's strength,

The spotted soe extends his length,

The Man besought the shaggy lord,

And on his knees for life implor'd.

His life the gen'rous hero gave;

Together walking to his cave,

The Lion thus bespoke his guest.

What hardy beast shall dare contest

My matchless strength! You saw the fight,
And must attest my pow'r and right.

Forc'd to forego their native home,
My starving slaves at distance roam.

Within these woods I reign alone,
The boundless forest is my own.

Bears, wolves, and all the savage brood,
Have dy'd the regal den with blood.

These carcasses on either hand,
Those bones that whiten all the land,
My former deeds and triumphs tell,
Beneath these jaws what numbers fell.

B 4

True,

True, fays the Man, the strength I saw Might well the brutal nation awe: But shall a monarch, brave like you, Place glory in so false a view? Robbers invade their neighbour's right. Be lov'd: let justice bound your might. Mean are ambitious heroes boafts Of wasted lands and slaughter'd hosts. Pirates their pow'r by murders gain, Wife kings by love and mercy reign, To me your clemency hath shown The virtue worthy of a throne. Heav'n gives you pow'r above the rest. Like Heav'n to succour the distrest. The case is plain, the Monarch said; False glory hath my youth misled; For beafts of prey, a fervile train, Have been the flatt'rers of my reign. You reason well. Yet tell me, friend, Did ever you in courts attend? For all my fawning rogues agree, That human heroes rule like me.

A fortune cannot fail thee :

The SPANIEL and the CAMELEON.

A Spaniel, bred with all the care

That waits upon a fav'rice heir,

Ne'er felt correction's rigid hand;

Indulg'd to disobey command,

In pamper'd ease his hours were spent:

He never knew what learning meant.

Such forward airs, so pert, so smart,

Were sure to win his lady's heart;

Each little mischief gain'd him praise;

How pretty were his fawning ways!

The wind was fouth, the morning fair,

He ventures forth to take the air.

He ranges all the meadow round,

And rolls upon the foftest ground:

When near him a Cameleon seen,

Was scarce distinguish'd from the green.

Dear emblem of the flatt'ring host, What, live with clowns! a genius lost!

B 5

To cities and the court repair; A fortune cannot fail thee there: Preferment shall thy talents crown. Believe me, friend; I know the town. Sir, fays the Sycophant, like you, Of old, politer life I knew: Like you, a courtier born and bred; Kings lean'd their ear to what I faid. My whifper always met fuccefs; The Ladies prais'd me for address. I knew to hit each courtier's passion, And flatter'd ev'ry vice in fashion. But Jove, who hates the liar's ways, At once cut fhort my prosp'rous days; And, fentenc'd to retain my nature, Transform'd me to this crawling creature. Doom'd to a life obscure and mean. I wander in the fylvan scene. For love the heart alone regards: He punishes what man rewards, How diff'rent is thy case and mine! With men at least you sup and dine; While I, condemn'd to thinnest fare, Like those I flatter'd, feed on air.

FABLE III.

The MOTHER, the NURSE, and the FAIRY.

GIVE me a fon. The bleffing fent,
Were ever parents more content?

How partial are their doating eyes!

No child is half fo fair and wife.

Wak'd to the morning's pleasing care,

The Mother rose, and sought her heir.

She saw the Nurse, like one posses'd,

With wringing hands, and sobbing breast.

Sure some disaster has befel:

Speak, Nurse; I hope the boy is well.

Dear Madam, think not me to blame; Invisible the Fairy came:

Your precious babe is hence convey'd,
And in the place a changeling laid.
Where are the father's mouth and nose,
The mother's eyes, as black as sloes?
See here, a shocking aukward creature,
That speaks a fool in every feature.

The woman's blind, the Mother cries;
I fee wit sparkle in his eyes.

Lord! Madam, what a fquinting leer!
No doubt the Fairy hath been here.

Just as she spoke, a Pigmy Sprite
Pops through the key-hole, swift as light;
Perch'd on the cradle's top he stands,
And thus her folly reprimands.

Whence sprung the vain conceited lie,
That we the world with sools supply?
What! give our sprightly race away,
For the dull helpless sons of clay!
Besides, by partial sondness shown,
Like you we doat upon our own.
Where yet was ever sound a mother,
Who'd give her booby for another?
And should we change with human breed,
Well might we pass for sools indeed.

The EAGLE, and the Affembly of ANIMALS.

A S JUPITER's all-seeing eye
Survey'd the worlds beneath the sky,
From this small speck of earth were sent,
Murmurs and sounds of discontent;
For ev'ry thing alive complain'd,
That he the hardest life sustain'd.

Jove calls the Eagle. At the word
Before him stands the royal bird.
The bird, obedient, from heav'n's hight,
Downward directs his rapid slight;
Then cited ev'ry living thing,
To hear the mandates of his king.

Ungrateful creatures, whence arise

These murmurs which offend the skies?

Why this disorder? say the cause:

For just are Jove's eternal laws.

Let each his discontent reveal;

To you four Dog, I first appeal.

Hard is my lot, the Hound replies,

On what sleet nerves the Greyhound slies!

VISIONI

While I, with weary step and slow,
O'er plains and vales, and mountains go.
The morning sees my chase begun,
Nor ends it till the setting sun.

When (fays the Greyhound) I pursue,
My game is lost, or caught in view;
Beyond my fight the prey's secure:
The Hound is slow, but always sure.
And had I his sagacious scent,
Jove ne'er had heard my discontent.

The Lion crav'd the Fox's art;
The Fox, the Lion's force and heart.
The Cock implor'd the Pigeon's flight,
Whose wings were rapid, strong, and light:
The Pigeon strength of wing despis'd,
And the Cock's matchless valour priz'd:
The Fishes wish'd to graze the plain;
The Beasts, to skim beneath the main.
Thus, envious of another's state,
Each blam'd the partial hand of Fate.

The bird of heav'n then cry'd aloud, Jove bids disperse the murm'ring croud; The God rejects your idle prayers. Would ye, rebellious mutineers,

Entirely

Entirely change your name and nature,
And be the very envy'd creature?
What, filent all, and none confent!
Be happy then, and learn content:
Nor imitate the reftless mind,
And proud ambition of mankind.

A Gainst an elm a sheep was ty'd
The butcher's knife in blood was dy'd:
The patient flock, in silent fright,
From far beheld the horrid sight.
A savage Boar, who near them stood,
Thus mock'd to scorn the sleecy brood.

All cowards should be serv'd like you.

See, see, your murd'rer is in view:

With purple hands, and reeking knise,

He strips the skin yet warm with life:

Your quarter'd sires, your bleeding dams,

The dying bleat of harmless lambs,

Call for revenge. O stupid race!

The heart that wants revenge, is base.

I grant, an ancient ram replies,
We bear no terror in our eyes;
Yet think us not of foul fo tame,
Which no repeated wrongs inflame;
Infenfible of ev'ry ill,
Because we want thy tusks to kill.

Know, those who violence pursue,

Give to themselves the vengeance due;

For in these massacres they find

The two chief plagues that waste mankind.

Our skin supplies the wrangling bar,

It wakes their slumb'ring sons to war;

The MISER and PLUTUS.

THE wind was high, the window shakes,
With sudden start the Miser wakes;
Along the silent room he stalks;
Looks back, and trembles as he walks!
Each lock and ev'ry bolt he tries,
In ev'ry creek and corner pries,
Then opes the chest with treasure stor'd,
And stands in rapture o'er his hoard.
But, now with sudden qualms posses,
He wrings his hands, he beats his breast.
By conscience stung, he wildly stares;
And thus his guilty soul declares.

Had the deep earth her stores consin'd,
This heart had known sweet peace of mind.
But virtue's fold. Good gods! what price
Can recompense the pangs of vice!
O bane of good! seducing cheat!
Can man, weak man, thy power defeat?
Gold banish'd honour from the mind,
And only left the name behind;

FAB.VI.

Gold fow'd the world with ev'ry ill;
Gold taught the murd'rer's fword to kill:
'Twas gold instructed coward hearts,
In treach'ry's more pernicious arts.
Who can recount the mischiefs o'er?
Virtue resides on earth no more!
He spoke, and sigh'd. In angry mood,
Plutus, his god, before him stood.
The Miser trembling, lock'd his chest;
The Vision frown'd, and thus addrest.

Whence is this vile ungrateful rant?

Each fordid rascal's daily cant.

Did I, base wretch, corrupt mankind?

The fault's in thy rapacious mind.

Because my blessing's are abus'd,

Must I be censur'd, curs'd, accus'd;

Ev'n virtue's felf by knaves is made

A cloak to carry on the trade;

And pow'r (when lodg'd in their possession)

Grows tyranny, and rank oppression.

Thus, when the villain crams his chest,

Gold is the canker of the breast;

'Tis avarice, insolence, and pride,

And ev'ry shocking vice beside.

But when to virtuous hands 'tis given,

It bleffes, like the dews of heaven:

Like heav'n, it hears the orphan's cries,

And wipes the tears from widow's eyes;

Their crimes on gold shall misers lay,

Who pawn'd their fordid souls for pay?

Let bravoes then (when blood is spilt)

Upbraid the passive soul with guilt.

I've visen from it, and the address.

FABLE VII.

The LION, the Fox, and the GEESE.

A Lion, tir'd with state affairs,

Quite sick of pomp, and worn with cares,

Resolv'd (remote from noise and strife)

In peace to pass his latter life.

It was proclaim'd; the day was fet:

Behold the gen'ral council met.

The Fox was Viceroy nam'd. The crowd

To the new Regent humbly bow'd.

Wolves, bears, and mighty tygers bend,

And strive who most shall condescend.

He strait assumes a solemn grace,

Collects his wisdom in his face,

The crowd admire his wit, his sense:

Each word hath weight and consequence.

The flatt'rer all his art displays:

He who hath power, is sure of praise.

A Fox stept forth before the rest,

And thus the servile throng addrest.

How vast his talents, born to rule, And train'd in virtue's honest school!

己

What clemency his temper sways!

How uncorrupt are all his ways!

Beneath his conduct and command,

Rapine shall cease to waste the land.

His brain hath stratagem and art;

Prudence and mercy rule his heart;

What blessings must attend the nation

Under this good administration!

He said. A Goose, who distant stood, Harangu'd apart the cackling brood.

Whene'er I hear a knave commend,
He bids me shun his worthy friend.
What praise! what mighty commendation!
But 'twas a Fox who spoke th' oration.
Foxes this government may prize,
As gentle, plentiful, and wise;
If they enjoy the sweets, 'tis plain
We Geese must feel a tyrant reign.
What havock now shall thin our race,
When ev'ry petty clerk in place,
To prove his taste, and seem polite,
Will feed on Geese both noon and night!

The LADY and the WASP.

What hourly nonsense haunts her ear!

Where-e'er her eyes dispense their charms,

Impertinence around her swarms.

Did not the tender nonsense strike,

Contempt and scorn might look dislike;

Forbidding airs might thin the place,

The slightest slap a sly can chase.

But who can drive the num'rous breed?

Chase one, another will succeed.

Who knows a fool, must know his brother;

One sop will recommend another:

And with this plague she's rightly curst,

Because she listen'd to the first.

As Doris, at her toilette's duty,
Sat meditating on her beauty,
She now was pensive, now was gay,
And loll'd the sultry hours away.

As thus in indolence she lies,
A giddy Wasp around her slies.
He now advances, now retires,
Now to her neck and cheek aspires.
Her fan in vain defends her charms;
Swift he returns, again alarms;
For by repulse he bolder grew,
Perch'd on her lip, and sipt the dew.

She frowns, she frets. Good gods! she cries,
Protect me from these teazing slies!

Of all the plagues that heav'n hath sent,
A Wasp is most impertinent.

The hov'ring insect thus complain'd,
Am I then slighted, scorn'd, disdain'd?
Can such offence your anger wake?
'Twas beauty caus'd the bold mistake.
Those cherry lips that breathe persume,
That cheek so ripe with youthful bloom,
Made me with strong desire pursue
The fairest peach that ever grew.

Strike him not, JENNY, DORIS cries, Nor murder Wasps like vulgar flies: For though he's free (to do him right) The creature's civil and polite, In ecstacies away he posts;
Where-e'er he came, the favour boasts;
Brags how her sweetest tea he sips,
And shews the sugar on his lips.

The hint alarm'd the forward crew.

Sure of success, away they slew.

They share the dainties of the day,

Round her with airy music play;

And now they slutter, now they rest,

Now soar again, and skim her breast.

Nor were they banish'd, till she found

That Wasps have stings, and felt the wound.

His eye-balls shot indignant fire;

He foam'd, he rag'd with thirst of blood.

Spurning the ground the monarch stood,
And roar'd aloud. Suspend the fight;

As one of these, in days of yore,
Rummag'd a shop of learning o'er;

And thus remark'd on what he read.

Man with strong reason is endow'd;

A beast scarce instinct is allow'd.

But let this author's worth be try'd,

'Tis plain that neither was his guide.

The PEACOCK, the TURKEY, and the GOOSE.

IN beauty faults conspicuous grow;
The smallest speck is seen on snow.

As near a barn, by hunger led,

A Peacock with the Poultry fed;

All view'd him with an envious eye,

And mock'd his gaudy pageantry.

He, confcious of fuperior merit,

Contemns their base reviling spirit;

His state and dignity assumes,

True. Those are faults, the Peacock cries;

My scream, my shanks you may despise:
But such blind critics rail in vain:
What, overlook my radiant train!

The Sage, awak'd at early day,
Through the deep forest took his way;
Drawn by the music of the groves,
Along the winding gloom he roves:
From tree to tree, the warbling throats
Prolong the sweet alternate notes.
But where he past, he terror threw,
The song broke short, the warblers slew;
The thrushes chatter'd with affright,
And nightingales abhor'd his sight;
All animals before him ran,
To shun the hateful sight of man.

Whence is this dread of ev'ry creature?

Fly they our figure or our nature?

As thus he walk'd in musing thought,

His ear impersect accents caught;

With cautious step he nearer drew,

By the thick shade conceal'd from view.

The PAINTER who pleased nobody and every body.

LEST men suspect your tale untrue,
Keep probability in view.
The trav'ler, leaping o'er those bounds,
The credit of his book confounds.
Who with his tongue hath armies routed,
Makes ev'n his real courage doubted:
But slatt'ry never seems absurd;
The slatter'd always take your word:
Impossibilities seem just;
They take the strongest praise on trust.
Hyperboles, tho' ne'er so great,
Will still come short of self-conceit.

So very like a Painter drew,

That ev'ry eye the picture knew;

He hit complexion, feature, air,

So just, the life itself was there.

No flatt'ry with his colours laid,

To bloom restor'd the faded maid;

He gave each muscle all its strength;

The mouth, the chin, the nose's length,

His honest pencil touch'd with truth, And mark'd the date of age and youth.

He lost his friends, his practice fail'd;
Truth should not always be reveal'd;
In dusty piles his pictures lay,
For no one sent the second pay.
Two bustos, fraught with ev'ry grace,
A Venus' and Apollo's face,
He plac'd in view; resolv'd to please,
Whoever sat, he drew from these,
From these corrected ev'ry feature,
And spirited each aukward creature.

All things were fet; the hour was come, His pallet ready o'er his thumb, My Lord appear'd; and feated right In proper attitude and light, The painter look'd, he sketch'd the piece, Then dipt his pencil, talk'd of Greece. But yet with patience you shall view As much as paint and art can do.

Observe the work. My Lord reply'd,
'Till now I thought my mouth was wide;
Besides, my nose is somewhat long;
Dear Sir, for me, 'tis far too young.

Oh! pardon me, the artist cry'd, In this, we painters must decide. The piece ev'n common eyes must strike, I warrant it extremely like.

My Lord examin'd it a-new; No looking-glass seem'd half so true.

A Lady came, with borrow'd grace
He from his Venus form'd her face.
Her lover prais'd the Painter's art;
So like the picture in his heart!
To ev'ry age fome charm he lent;
Ev'n Beauties were almost content.

Through all the town his art they prais'd;
His custom grew, his price was rais'd.
Had he the real likeness shown,
Would any man the picture own?
But when thus happily he wrought,
Each found the likeness in his thought.

The PERSIAN, the SUN, and the CLOUD.

Is there a bard whom genius fires,
Whose ev'ry thought the God inspires?
When envy reads the nervous lines,
She frets, she rails, she raves, she pines;
Her hissing snakes with venom swell;
She calls her venal train from hell:
The service siends her nod obey,
And all Curl's authors are in pay.
Fame calls up calumny and spite.
Thus shadow owes its birth to light.

As prostrate to the God of day, With heart devout, a Persian lay, His invocation thus begun.

Parent of light, all-seeing Sun,
Prolific beam, whose rays dispense
The various gifts of providence,
Accept our praise, our daily prayer,
Smile on our fields, and bless the year.

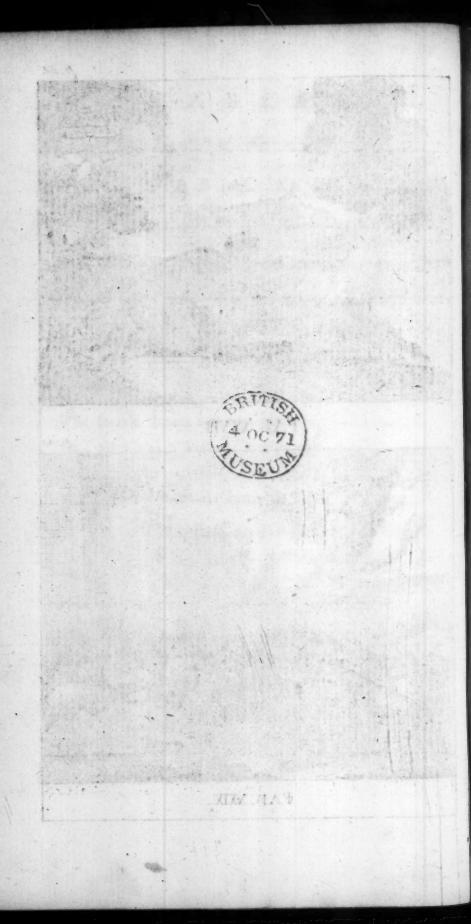

A Cloud,

FAB: XXVIII.

FAB: XXIX.

A Cloud, who mock'd his grateful tongue,
The day with sudden darkness hung;
With pride and envy swell'd, aloud
A voice thus thunder'd from the cloud.
Weak is this gaudy God of thine,
Whom I at will forbid to shine.
Shall I nor vows, nor incense know?
Where praise is due, the praise bestow.

With fervent zeal the Persian mov'd,
Thus the proud calumny reprov'd.
It was that God, who claims my prayer,
Who gave thee birth, and rais'd thee there;
When o'er his beams the veil is thrown,
Thy substance is but plainer shown.
A passing gale, a pust of wind
Dispels thy thickest troops combin'd.

The gale arose; the vapour tost (The sport of winds) in air was lost; The glorious orb the day refines.

Thus envy breaks, thus merit shines.

FABLE XXIX.

The Fox at the point of Death.

A Fox, in life's extreme decay,
Weak, fick, and faint, expiring lay;
All appetite had left his maw,
And age disarm'd his mumbling jaw.
His num'rous race around him stand
To learn their dying sire's command:
He rais'd his head with whining moan,
And thus was heard the feeble tone.

Ah, fons! from evil ways depart:

My crimes lie heavy on my heart.

See, fee, the murder'd geese appear!

Why are those bleeding turkeys there?

Why all around this cackling train,

Who haunt my ears for chicken slain?

The hungry Foxes round them star'd,

And for the promis'd feast prepar'd.

Where, Sir, is all this dainty cheer? Nor turkey, goose, nor hen is here. These are the phantoms of your brain, And your sons lick their lips in vain.

O gluttons!

Restrain inordinate desire.

Your liqu'rish taste you shall deplore,
When peace of conscience is no more.

Does not the hound betray our pace,
And gins and guns destroy our race?

Thieves dread the searching eye of pow'r,
And never feel the quiet hour.

Old age (which sew of us shall know)

Now puts a period to my woe.

Would you true happiness attain,
Let honesty your passions rein;
So live in credit and esteem,
And the good name you lost, redeem,

The counsel's good, a Fox replies,

Could we perform what you advise.

Think what our ancestors have done;

A line of thieves from son to son:

To us descends the long disgrace,

And infamy hath mark'd our race.

Though we, like harmless sheep, should feed,

Honest in thought, in word, and deed;

Whatever hen-rooft is decreas'd,

We shall be thought to share the feast.

The change shall never be believ'd.

A lost good name is ne'er retriev'd.

Nay, then, replies the feeble Fox,

Go, but be mod'rate in your food;

A Chicken too might do me good.

She mocks their toils, alarms her brood;
The covey springs, and seeks the wood;
But ere her certain wing she tries,
Thus to the creeping spaniel cries.
Thou sawning slave to man's deceit,
Thou pimp of luxury, sneaking cheat,
Of thy whole species thou disgrace,

And, like infirm old age, declines.

And raves, and prays, and swears by sits;
A ghastly phantom, lean and wan,
Before him rose, and thus began.

My name perhaps hath reach'd your ear;
Attend, and be adwis'd by Care.

Nor love, nor honour, wealth, nor pow'r,
Can give the heart a chearful hour,
When health is loft. Be timely wife:
With health all taste of pleasure sies.

Thus said, the phantom disappears.
The wary counsel wak'd his fears:
He now from all excess abstains,
With physick purifies his veins;

But now again the Sprite ascends,

Where'er he walks his ear attends;

Insinuates that beauty's frail,

That perseverance must prevail;

With jealousies his brain instances,

And whispers all her lover's names.

In other hours she represents

His houshold charge, his annual rents,

Increasing debts, perplexing duns,

And nothing for his younger sons.

And with the thirst of lucre burns.

But when possess'd of fortune's store,

The Spectre haunts him more and more;

Sets want and misery in view,

Bold thieves, and all the murd'ring crew;

Alarms him with eternal frights,

Infests his dream, or wakes his nights.

How shall he chase this hideous guest?

Pow'r may perhaps protect his rest.

PYTHAGORAS and the COUNTRYMAN.

PYTHAG'RAS rose at early dawn,
By soaring meditation drawn,
To breathe the fragrance of the day,
Through slow'ry fields he took his way.
In musing contemplation warm,
His steps missed him to a farm,
Where, on the ladder's topmost round,
A peasant stood; the hammer's sound
Shook the weak barn. Say, friend, what care
Calls for thy honest labour there?

The Clown, with furly voice replies,

Vengeance aloud for justice cries.

This kite, by daily rapine fed,

My hens annoy, my turkeys dread,

At length his forfeit life hath paid;

See on the wall his wings display'd,

Here nail'd, a terror to his kind,

My fowls shall future safety find;

My yard the thriving poultry feed,

And my barn's refuse fat the breed.

Friend,

Friend, says the Sage, the doom is wise;
For publick good the murd'rer dies.
But if these tyrants of the air
Demand a sentence so severe,
Think how the glutton, man, devours;
What bloody feasts regale his hours!
O impudence of power and might,
Thus to condemn a hawk or kite,
When thou perhaps, carniv'rous sinner,
Hadst pullets yesterday for dinner!

Hold, cry'd the Clown, with passion heated,
Shall kites and men alike be treated?
When heav'n the world with creatures stor'd,
Man was ordain'd their sov'reign lord.

Thus tyrants boast, the Sage reply'd,
Whose murders spring from power and pride.
Own then this manlike kite is slain
Thy greater lux'ry to sustain;

The FARMER'S WIFE and the RAVEN.

WHY are those tears? why droops your head?

Is then your other husband dead?

Or does a worse disgrace betide?

Hath no one since his death apply'd?

Alas! you know the cause too well:

The salt is spilt, to me it sell.

Then to contribute to my loss,

My knife and fork were laid acros:

On Friday too! the day I dread!

Would I were fafe at home in bed!

Last night (I vow to heav'n 'tis true)

Bounce from the fire a coffin flew.

Next post some fatal news shall tell.

God fend my Cornish friends be well!

Unhappy widow, ceafe thy tears,

Nor feel affliction in thy fears.

Let not thy stomach be suspended;

Eat now, and weep when dinner's ended;

And when the butler clears the table,

For thy defert, I'll read my fable.

Betwixt her swagging pannier's load
A farmer's wife to market rode,

And,

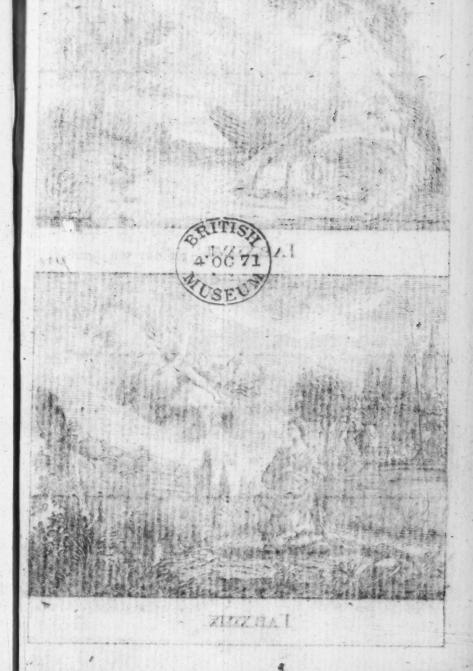

And, jogging on, with thoughtful care Summ'd up the profits of her ware; When, starting from her silver dream, Thus far and wide was heard her scream.

That raven on you dest-hand oak (Curse on his ill-betiding croak) Bodes me no good. No more she said, When poor blind Ball, with stumbling tread, Fell prone; o'erturn'd the pannier lay, And her mash'd eggs bestrow'd the way.

She, sprawling in the yellow road, Rail'd, fwore and curs'd. Thou croaking toad, A murrain take thy whorefon throat! I knew misfortune in the note.

Dame, quoth the Raven, spare your oaths, Unclench your fift, and wipe your cloaths. By why on me those curses thrown? Goody, the fault was all your own; For had you laid this brittle ware, On Dun, the old fure-footed mare, Though all the ravens of the hundred, With croaking had your tongue out-thunder'd, Sure-footed Dun had kept her legs, And you, good woman, sav'd your eggs.

A Turkey, tir'd of common food, Forfook the barn, and fought the wood; Behind her ran an infant train. Collecting here and there a grain, Draw near, my birds, the mother cries, This hill delicious fare supplies; Behold, the bufy Negroe race, See, millions blacken all the place! Fear not. The FATHER and JUPITER.

THE Man to Jove his suit preferr'd;
He begg'd a wife. His prayer was heard.

Jove wonder'd at his bold addressing:

For how precarious is the blessing!

A wife he takes. And now for heirs

Again he worries heav'n with prayers.

Jove nods affent. Two hopeful boys

And a fine girl reward his joys.

Now, more folicitous he grew,
And fet their future lives in view;
He saw that all respect and duty
Were paid to wealth, to power, and beauty.

Once more, he cries, accept my prayer;

Make my lov'd progeny thy care.

Let my first hope, my fav'rite boy,

All fortune's richest gifts enjoy.

My next with strong ambition fire:

May favour teach him to aspire;

Till he the step of pow'r ascend,

And courtiers to their idol bend.

With ev'ry grace, with ev'ry charm, My daughter's perfect features arm. If Heav'n approve, a Father's blefs'd. Jove smiles, and grants his full request.

The first, a miser at the heart,

Studious of ev'ry griping art,

Heaps hoards on hoards with anxious pain,

And all his life devotes to gain.

He feels no joy, his cares increase,

He neither wakes nor sleeps in peace;

In fancy'd want (a wretch compleat)

He starves, and yet he dares not eat.

The next to sudden honours grew:
The thriving art of courts he knew:
He reach'd the height of power and place;
Then fell, the victim of difgrace.

Beauty with early bloom supplies

His daughter's cheek, and points her eyes.

The vain coquette each suit disdains,

And glories in her lover's pains.

With age she fades, each lover slies,

Contemn'd, forlorn, she pines and dies.

The JUGGLERS.

A Juggler long through all the town
Had rais'd his fortune and renown;
You'd think (so far as art transcends)
The Devil at his fingers ends.

Vice heard his fame, she read his bill;
Convinc'd of his inferior skill,
She sought his booth, and from the crowd
Defy'd the man of art aloud.

Is this then he so sam'd for slight?

Can this slow bungler cheat your sight?

Dares he with me dispute the prize?

I leave it to impartial eyes.

Provok'd, the Juggler cry'd, 'Tis done.

In science I submit to none.

Thus faid. The cups and balls he play'd;

By turns, this here, that there, convey'd.

The cards, obedient to his words,

Are by a fillip turn'd to birds.

His little boxes change the grain:

Trick after trick deludes the train.

He shakes his bag, he shews all fair;
His singers spread, and nothing there;
Then bids it rain with showers of gold,
And now his iv'ry eggs are told.
But when from thence the hen he draws,
Amaz'd spectators hum applause.

Vice now stept forth, and took the place With all the forms of his grimace.

This magic looking-glass, she cries,
(There, hand it round) will charm your eyes.

Each eager eye the fight desir'd,
And ev'ry man himself admir'd.

Next, to a fenator addressing;
See this bank-note; observe the blessing.
Breathe on the Bill. Heigh, pass! 'Tis gone.

In haste stept forth before the rest,
And thus the list'ning throng addrest.

Good gods! how abject is our race,

Condemn'd to flav'ry and difgrace!

Shall we our fervitude retain,

Because our fires have borne the chain?

Consider, friends, your strength and might;

'Tis conquest to affert your right.

How cumb'rous is the gilded coach!

The pride of man is our reproach.

Were we design'd for daily toil,

To drag the plough-share through the soil;

To sweat in harness through the road,

To groan beneath the carrier's load?

How seeble are the two legg'd kind!

What force is in our nerves combin'd!

To foam and champ the galling bit?

Shall haughty man my back bestride?

Shall the sharp spur provoke my side?

Forbid it heav'ns! Reject the rein;

Your shame, your infamy disdain.

Impertinence at first is borne
With heedless slight, or smiles of scorn;
Teaz'd into wrath, what patience bears
The noisy fool who perseveres?

The morning wakes, the Huntsman sounds,
At once rush forth the joyful hounds.
They seek the wood with eager pace,
Through bush, through brier explore the chace.
Now scatter'd wide, they try the plain,
And snuff the dewy turf in vain.
What care, what industry, what pains!
What universal silence reigns.

Ringwood, a Dog of little fame,
Young, pert, and ignorant of game,
At once displays his babbling throat;
The pack, regardless of the note,
Pursue the scent; with louder strain
He still persists to vex the train.

How happy should I prove,
Might I supply that envy'd place
With never-fading love!
There, Phænix like, beneath her eye,
Involv'd in fragrance, burn and die!

Know, hapless flower, that thou shalt find

More fragrant roses there;

One common fate we both must prove;

You die with envy, I with love.

Spare your comparisons, reply'd
An angry Rose, who grew beside.
Of all mankind you should not flout us;
What can a Poet do without us!
In ev'ry love-song roses bloom;

'Tis pow'r we find The gen'ral idol of mankind; There worship'd under ev'ry shape; Alike the lion, fox, and ape,

Are follow'd by time-serving slaves, Rich prostitutes and needy knaves.

Who then shall glory in his post? How frail his pride, how vain his boaft! The followers of his prosp'rous hour Are as unstable as his pow'r. Pow'r, by the breath of flatt'ry nurst, The more it swells, is nearer burst. The bubble breaks, the gewgaw ends, And in a dirty tear descends.

Once on a time, an ancient maid, By wishes and by time decay'd, To cure the pangs of reftless thought, In birds and beafts amusement sought: Dogs, parrots, apes, her hours employ'd; With these alone she talk'd and toy'd.

A huge Baboon her fancy took, (Almost a man in fize and look) He finger'd ev'ry thing he found, And mimick'd all the fervants round. Then too his parts and ready wit Shew'd him for ev'ry bus'ness fit.

With all these talents, 'twas but just
That Pug should hold a place of trust:
So to her fav'rite was assign'd
The charge of all her feather'd kind.
'Twas his to tend 'em eve and morn,
And portion out their daily corn.

Behold him now with haughty stride,
Assume a ministerial pride.

The morning rose. In hope of picking,
Swans, turkeys, peacocks, ducks, and chicken,
Fowls of all ranks surround his hut,
To worship his important strut.

The minister appears. The croud,
Now here, now there, obsequious bow'd.

This prais'd his parts, and that his face,
T'other his dignity in place.

From bill to bill the slatt'ry ran:
He hears and bears it like a man:
For, when we slatter self-conceit,
We but his sentiments repeat.

If we're too scrupulously just,
What profit's in a place of trust?
The common practice of the great,
Is, to secure a snug retreat.

So Pug began to turn his brain
(Like other folks in place) on gain.
An apple-woman's stall was near,
Well stock'd with fruits through all the year;
Here ev'ry day he cram'd his guts,
Hence were his hoards of pears and nuts;
For 'twas agreed (in way of trade)
His payments should in corn be made.

The stock of grain was quickly spent,
And no account which way it went.
Then too the Poultry's starv'd condition
Caus'd speculations of suspicion.
The facts were prov'd beyond dispute;
Pug must refund his hoards of fruit:
And, though then minister in chief,
Was branded as a public thief.
Disgrac'd, despis'd, consin'd to chains,
He nothing but his pride retains.

A goose pass'd by; he knew the face, Seen ev'ry levee while in place.

What, no respect! no rev'rence shown!

How saucy are those creatures grown!

Not two days since (says he) you bow'd

The lowest of my fawning crowd.

Proud

Proud fool, (replies the goose) 'tis true,
Thy corn a flutt'ring levee drew;
For that I join'd the hungry train,
And sold thee flatt'ry for thy grain.
But then, as now, conceited ape,
We saw thee in thy proper shape.

FABLE

FABLE IV. The ANT in Office.

TO A FRIEND.

You tell me, that you apprehend
My verse may touchy folks offend.
In prudence too you think my rhimes
Should never squint at courtiers crimes;
For though nor this, nor that is meant,
Can we another's thoughts prevent?

You ask me if I ever knew

Court-chaplains thus the lawn pursue.

I meddle not with gown or lawn;

Poets, I grant, to rise must fawn.

They know great ears are over-nice,

And never shock their patron's vice.

But I this hackney path despise;

'Tis my ambition not to rise.

If I must prostitute my muse,

The base conditions I resuse.

I neither flatter nor defame, Yet own I would bring guilt to shame,

FAB.III.

If I corruption's hand expose, I make corrupted men my foes, What then? I hate the paltry tribe. Be virtue mine; be theirs the bribe. I no man's property invade; Corruption's yet no lawful trade. Nor would it mighty ills produce, Could I shame brib'ry out of use. I know 'twould cramp most politicians, Were they ty'd down to these conditions. 'Twould flint their power, their riches bound, And make their parts feem lefs profound. Were they deny'd their proper tools, How could they lead their knaves and fools? Were this the case, let's take a view. What dreadful mischiefs would ensue: Though it might aggrandize the state, Could private luxury dine on plate? Kings might indeed their friends reward, But ministers find less regard. Informers, fycophants, and fpies, Would not augment the year's supplies. Perhaps too, take away this prop, An annual jobb or too might drop.

H 3

Besides,

Besides, if pensions were deny'd, Could avarice support its pride? It might even ministers confound, And yet the state be safe and sound.

I care not though 'tis understood;
I only mean my country's good:
And (let who will my freedom blame)
I wish all courtiers did the same.
Nay, though some folks the less might get,
I wish the nation out of debt.
I put no private man's ambition
With publick good in competition:
Rather than have our law defac'd,
I'd vote a minister disgrac'd.

I strike at vice, be't where it will;
And what if great folks take it ill?
I hope, corruption, brib'ry, pension,
One may with detestation mention;
Think you the law (let who will take it)
Can scandalum magnatum make it?
I vent no slander, owe no grudge,
Nor of another's conscience judge:
At him or him I take no aim,
Yet dare against all vice declaim.

Shall I not censure breach of trust,
Because knaves know themselves unjust?
That steward whose account is clear,
Demands his honour may appear:
His actions never shun the light,
He is, and would be prov'd upright.

But then you think my Fable bears Allusion too to state affairs.

I grant it does: And who's fo great,
That has the privilege to cheat;
If then in any future reign
(For ministers may thirst for gain)
Corrupted hands defraud the nation;
I bar no reader's application.

An Ant there was, whose forward prate Controul'd all matters in debate;
Whether he knew the thing or no,
His tongue eternally would go.
For he had impudence at will,
And boasted universal skill.
Ambition was his point in view;
Thus by degrees to pow'r he grew.
Behold him now his drift attain:
He's made chief treas'rer of the grain.

1

H 4

But

But as their ancient laws are just,
And punish breach of publick trust,
'Tis order'd (lest wrong application
Should starve that wise industrious nation)
That all accounts be stated clear,
Their stock, and what defray'd the year;
That auditors shall these inspect,
The publick rapine thus be check'd.
For this the solemn day was set.
The auditors in council met.
The gran'ry-keeper must explain,
And balance his account of grain.
He brought (since he could not resuse 'em)
Some scraps of paper to amuse 'em.

An honest pismire, warm with zeal,
In justice to the publick weal,
Thus spoke. The nation's hoard is low.
From whence does this profusion flow?
I know our annual funds amount.
Why such expence; and where's th' account?

With wonted arrogance and pride,
The Ant in office thus reply'd.
Consider, Sirs, were secrets told,
How could the best-schem'd projects hold?

Should

Should we state-mysteries disclose,
'Twould lay us open to our foes.

My duty and my well known zeal

Bid me our present schemes conceal:

But, on my honour, all th' expence

(Though vast) was for the swarm's defence.

They pass'd th' account as fair and just,

Next year again the gran'ry drain'd, He thus his innocence maintain'd.

And voted him implicit truft.

Think how our present matters stand,
What dangers threat from ev'ry hand;
What hosts of turkeys stroll for food,
No farmer's wife but hath her brood.
Consider, when invasion's near,
Intelligence must cost us dear;
And, in this ticklish situation,
A secret told betrays the nation.
But, on my honour, all th' expence
(Though vast) was for the swarm's defence.

Again, without examination, They thank'd his fage administration.

His honour too again was pledg'd.
To fatisfy the charge alledg'd.

When thus, with panic shame possess'd, An auditor his friends address'd.

What are we? Ministerial tools.

We little knaves are greater fools.

At last this secret is explor'd;

'Tis our corruption thins the hoard.

For ev'ry grain we touch'd, at least

A thousand his own heaps increas'd.

A hundred hardly could suffice.

Thus, for a paltry sneaking bribe,

We cheat ourselves, and all the tribe;

The fraud is sentenc'd; and his hoard,

FABLE V.

The BEAR in a Boat.

TO A COXCOMB.

HAT man must daily wifer grow, Whose search is bent himself to know; Impartially he weighs his scope, And on firm reason founds his hope; He tries his strength before the race, And never feeks his own difgrace; He knows the compass, fail and oar, Or never launches from the shore; Before he builds, computes the cost, And in no proud pursuit is loft: He learns the bounds of human fense, And fafely walks within the fence. Thus, conscious of his own defect, Are pride and felf-importance check'd.

If then, felf-knowledge to purfue, Direct our life in ev'ry view, Of all the fools that pride can boat, A Coxcomb claims distinction most.

H 6

Coxcombs

Coxcombs are of all ranks and kind;
The're not to fex or age confin'd,
Or rich, or poor, or great, or fmall;
And vanity befots 'em all.
By ignorance is pride increas'd:
Those most assume who know the least;
Their own false balance gives 'em weight,
But ev'ry other finds 'em light.

Not that all Coxcombs follies strike,
And draw our ridicule alike;
To distrent merits each pretends.
This in love-vanity transcends;
That smitten with his face and shape,
By dress distinguishes the ape;
T'other with learning crams his shelf,
Knows books, and all things but himself.

All these are sools of low condition, Compar'd with Coxcombs of ambition. For those, puff'd up with flatt'ry, dare Assume a nation's various care. They ne'er the grossest praise mistrust, Their sycophants seem hardly just; For these, in part alone, attest The slatt'ry their own thoughts suggest.

In this wide sphere a Coxcomb's shown
In other realms besides his own:
The self-deem'd Machiavel at large
By turns controuls in ev'ry charge.
Does commerce suffer in her rights?
'Tis he directs the naval slights.
What sailor dares dispute his skill?
He'll be an adm'ral when he will.

Now, meddling in the foldier's trade, Troops must be hir'd, and levies made. He gives ambassadors their cue, His cobbled treaties to renew: And annual taxes must suffice The current blunders to difguise. When his crude schemes in air are loft, And millions scarce defray the cost, His arrogance (nought undifinay'd) Trufting in felf-fufficient aid, On other rocks misguides the realm, And thinks a pilot at the helm. He ne'er suspects his want of skill, But blunders on from ill to ill: And, when he fails of all intent. Blames only unforeseen event.

Lest you mistake the application, The fable calls me to relation.

A Bear of shag and manners rough,
At climbing trees expert enough;
For dext'rously, and safe from harm,
Year after year he robb'd the swarm.
Thus thriving on industrious toil,
He glory'd in his pilser'd spoil.

This trick fo swell'd him with conceit,

He thought no enterprize too great.

Alike in sciences and arts,

He boasted universal parts;

Pragmatic, busy, bustling, bold,

His arrogance was uncontroul'd:

And thus he made his party good,

And grew dictator of the wood.

The beafts, with admiration, stare,

And think him a prodigious Bear.

Were any common booty got,

'Twas his each portion to allot:

For why, he found there might be picking,

Ev'n in the carving of a chicken.

Intruding

Intruding thus, he by degrees
Claim'd too the butcher's larger fees.
And now his over-weaning pride
In ev'ry province will prefide.
No talk too difficult was found:
His blund'ring nose misleads the hound.
In stratagem and subtle arts,
He over-rules the fox's parts.

It chanc'd, as, on a certain day,
Along the bank he took his way,
A boat, with rudder, fail, and oar,
At anchor floated near the shore.
He stopt, and turning to his train,
Thus pertly vents his vaunting strain.

What blund'ring puppies are mankind, In ev'ry science always blind!
I mock the pedantry of schools.
What are their compasses and rules?
From me that helm shall conduct learn,
And man his ignorance discern.

So faying, with audacious pride,
He gains the boat, and climbs the fide.
The beafts aftonish'd line the strand.
The anchor's weigh'd, he drives from land:

The

The flack fail shifts from fide to fide; The boat untrim'd admits the tide. Borne down, adrift, at random toft, His oar breaks short, the rudder's lost. The Bear, presuming in his skill, Is here and there officious still; Till, firiking on the dang'rous fands, A-ground the shatter'd vessel stands. To fee the bungler thus diffrest, The very fishes sneer and jest. Ev'n gudgeons join in ridicule, To mortify the meddling fool. The clam'rous watermen appear; Threats curses, oaths, infult his ear: Seiz'd, thresh'd, and chain'd, he's dragg'd to land; Derision shouts along the strand.

FABLE VI.

The SQUIRE and his CUR.

TO A COUNTRY GENTLEMAN.

THE man of pure and simple heart Through life disdains a double part. He never needs the screen of lies His inward bosom to disguise. In vain malicious tongues affail; Let envy fnarl, let slander rail, From virtue's shield (seeure from wound) Their blunted venom'd shafts rebound. So shines his light before mankind, His actions prove his honest mind. If in his country's cause he rise, Debating fenates to advise, Unbrib'd, unaw'd, he dares impart The honest dictates of his heart. No ministerial frown he fears, But in his virtue perseveres.

But would you play the politician, Whose heart's averse to intuition, Your lips at all times, nay, your reason Must be controul'd by place and season. What statesman could his pow'r support, Were lying tongues forbid the court? Did princely ears to truth attend, What minister could gain his end? How could he raise his tools to place, And how his honest foes disgrace?

That politician tops his part,
Who readily can lie with art:
The man's proficient in his trade;
His pow'r is strong, his fortune's made.
By that the int'rest of the throne
Is made subservient to his own:
By that have kings of old, deluded,
All their own friends for his excluded.
By that, his selfish schemes pursuing,
He thrives upon the public ruin.

*Antiochus, with hardy pace, Provok'd the dangers of the chace; And, lost, from all his menial train, Travers'd the wood and pathless plain.

* PLUTARCH.

A cottage lodg'd the royal guest;
The PARTHIAN clown brought forth his best.
The king unknown his feast enjoy'd,
And various chat the hours employ'd.
From wine what sudden friendship springs!
Frankly they talk'd of courts and kings.

We country-folks (the clown replies) Cou'd ope our gracious monarch's eyes. The king, (as all our neighbours fay) Might he (God bless him!) have his way, Is found at heart, and means our good, And he would do it, if he cou'd. If truth in courts were not forbid, Nor kings nor subjects would be rid. Were he in pow'r we need not doubt him: But that transferr'd to those about him, On them he throws the regal cares: And what mind they? Their own affairs. If fuch rapacious hands he trust, The best of men may seem unjust. From kings to cobblers 'tis the same: Bad fervants wound their master's fame. In this our neighours all agree: Would the king knew as much as we.

Here

Here he stopt short. Repose they sought, The peasant slept, the monarch thought.

The courtiers learn'd, at early dawn, Where their loft fov'reign was withdrawn. The guards approach, our host alarms, With gaudy coats the cottage fwarms. The crown and purple robes they bring, And proftrate fall before the king. The clown was call'd, the royal guest By due reward his thanks exprest. The king then, turning to the crowd, Who fawningly before him bow'd, Thus spoke. Since, bent on private gain, Your counsels first misled my reign, Taught and inform'd by you alone, No truth the royal ear hath known, Till here conversing. Hence, ye crew, For now I know myself and you.

Whene'er the royal ear's ingrost,
State-lies but little genius cost.
The fav'rite then securely robs,
And gleans a nation by his jobbs.
Franker and bolder grown in ill,
He daily poisons dares instil;

And, as his present views suggest,
Inflames or sooths the royal breast.
Thus wicked ministers oppress,
When oft' the monarch means redress.

Would kings their private subjects hear A minister must talk with fear. If honesty oppos'd his views, He dare not innocence accuse. 'Twould keep him in such narrow bound, He could not right and wrong confound. Happy were kings, could they disclose Their real friends and real foes! Were both themselves and subjects known, A monarch's will might be his own. Had he the use of ears and eyes, Knaves would no more be counted wife. But then a minister might lose (Hard case!) his own ambitious views. When fuch as these have vex'd a state, Pursu'd by universal hate, Their false support at once hath fail'd, And persevering truth prevail'd. Expos'd, their train of fraud is feen; Truth will at last remove the screen.

A country 'Squire, by whim directed,

The true, staunch dogs of chace neglected.

Beneath his board no hound was fed;

His hand ne'er strok'd the spaniel's head.

A snappish Cur, alone carest,

By lies had banish'd all the rest.

YAP had his ear; and defamation

Gave him sull scope of conversation.

His sycophants must be preferr'd

Room must be made for all his herd:

Wherefore, to bring his schemes about.

Old faithful servants all must out.

The Cur on ev'ry creature flew,

(As other great mens puppies do),

Unless due court to him were shown,

And both their face and bus'ness known.

No honest tongue an audience found:

He worried all the tenants round;

For why, he liv'd in constant fear,

Lest truth by chance should interfere.

If any stranger dare intrude,

The noisy Cur his heels pursu'd.

Now fierce with rage, now struck with dread,

At once he snarled, bit, and sled.

Aloof he bays, with briffling hair,
And thus in fecret growls his fear.
Who knows but truth, in this difguife,
May frustrate my best guarded lies?
Should she (thus mask'd) admittance find,
That very hour my ruin's sign'd.

Now in his howl's continu'd found,

Their words were lost, the voice was drown'd.

Ever in awe of honest tongues,

Thus ev'ry day he strain'd his lungs.

It happen'd, in ill-omen'd hour,
That YAP, unmindful of his pow'r,
Forfook his post, to love inclin'd;
A fav'rite bitch was in the wind.
By her seduc'd, in am'rous play,
They frisk'd the joyous hours away.
Thus by untimely love pursuing,
Like Antony, he sought his ruin.

For now the 'Squire, unvex'd with noise,
An honest neighbour's chat enjoys.
Be free (says he) your mind impart;
I love a friendly open heart.
Methinks my tenants shun my gate;
Why such a stranger grown of late?

Pray tell me what offence they find: 'Tis plain they're not so well inclin'd.

Turn off your Cur (the farmer cries)
Who feeds your ear with daily lies.
His fnarling insolence offends:
Tis he that keeps you from your friends.
Were but that faucy puppy checkt,
You'd find again the same respect.
Hear only him, he'll swear it too,
That all our hatred is to you.
But learn from us your true estate;
'Tis that curs'd Cur alone we hate.

The 'Squire heard truth. Now YAP rush'd in;
The wide hall echoes with his din:
Yet truth prevail'd; and, with disgrace,
The Dog was cudgell'd out of place.

First take the glass, the God replies;

Man views the world with partial eyes.

The miseries of war he mourn'd;

Thus, weighing life in each condition,
The Clown withdrew his rash petition.

The JACKALL, LEOPARD, and other Beafts.

TO A MODERN POLITICIAN.

Grant corruption fways mankind; That int'rest too perverts the mind; That bribes have blinded common sense, Foil'd reason, truth, and eloquence: I grant you too, our present crimes Can equal those of former times. Against plain facts shall I engage, To vindicate our righteous age? I know, that in a modern fift, Bribes in full energy subfift. By places, perform Since then these arguments prevail, And itching palms are fill fo frail, Hence politicians you fuggeft, Should drive the nail that goes the best; That it shows parts and penetration, To ply men with the right temptation.

To this I humbly must dissent:

Premising, no reslection's meant.

Does justice or the client's sense Teach lawyers either fide's defence? The fee gives eloquence its spirit; That only is the client's merit. Does art, wit, wisdom, or address, Obtain the proftitute's carefs? The guinea (as in other trades) From ev'ry hand alike perfuades. Man, Scripture fays, is prone to evil, But does that vindicate the devil? Besides, the more mankind are prone, The less the devil's parts are shown. Corruption's not of modern date; It hath been try'd in ev'ry state. Great knaves of old their power have fenc'd; By places, pensions, bribes, dispens'd; By these they glory'd in success, And impudently dar'd oppress; By these despoticly they sway'd, And flaves extoll'd the hand that pay'd; Nor parts nor genius were employ'd. By these alone were realms destroy'd. Now see these wretches in disgrace, Stript of their treasures, pow'r, and place;

View.

View 'em abandon'd and forlorn,

Expos'd to just reproach and scorn.

What now is all your pride, your boast?

Where are your slaves, your flatt'ring host?

What tongues now feed you with applause?

Where are the champions of your cause?

Now ev'n that very fawning train

Which shar'd the gleanings of your gain,

Press foremost who shall first accuse

Your selsish jobbs, your paltry views,

Your narrow schemes, your breach of trust,

And want of talents to be just.

What fools were these amidst their pow'r!

How thoughtless of their adverse hour!

What friends were made? A hireling herd,

For temporary votes preferr'd.

Was it, these sycophants to get,

Your bounty swell'd a nation's debt?

You're bit. For these, like Swiss, attend;

No longer pay, no longer friend.

The Lion is (beyond dispute)

Allow'd the most majestic brute;

His valour and his gen'rous mind

Prove him superior of his kind.

Yet to Jackalls (as 'tis averr'd)

Some Lions have their power transferr'd:

As if the parts of pimps and spies

To govern forests could suffice.

Once, studious of his private good,

A proud Jackall oppress'd the wood;

To cram his own insatiate jaws,

Invaded property and laws.

The forest groans with discontent,

Fresh wrongs the gen'ral hate foment.

The spreading murmurs reach'd his ear;

His secret hours were vex'd with sear.

Night after night he weighs the case,

And seels the terrors of disgrace.

By friends (fays he) I'll guard my feat,
By those malicious tongues defeat:
I'll strengthen pow'r by new allies,
And all my clam'rous foes despise.

To make the gen'rous beafts his friends,
He cringes, fawns, and condescends;
But those repuls'd his abject court,
And scorn'd oppression to support.
Friends must be had. He can't subsist.
Bribes shall new proselytes in list.

But these nought weigh'd in honest paws;

For bribes confess'd a wicked cause:

Yet think not ev'ry paw withstands

What had prevail'd in human hands.

A tempting turnip's filver skin

Drew a base hog through thick and thin:

Bought with a stag's delicious hanch,

The mercenary wolf was stanch:

The convert fox grew warm and hearty,

A pullet gain'd him to the party:

The golden pippin in his sist,

A chatt'ring monkey join'd the list.

But foon, expos'd to public hate,

The fav'rite's fall redress'd the state.

The Leopard, vindicating right,

Had brought his fecret frauds to light.

The DEGENERATE BEES.

TO THE REVEREND DR. SWIFT, DEAN OF ST. PATRICK'S.

Hough courts the practice difallow, A friend at all times I'll avow. In politics I know 'tis wrong: A friendship may be kept too long; And that they call the prudent part, Is to wear int'rest next the heart. As the times take a different face, Old friendships should to new give place.

I know too you have many foes, That owning you is sharing those; That ev'ry knave in ev'ry station, Of high and low denomination, For what you fpeak, and what you write, Dread you at once, and bear you spite. With all the petty scribbling crew,
(And those pert sots are not a few,)
'Gainst you and Pope their envy spurt.
The booksellers alone are hurt.

Good gods! by what a powerful race
(For blockeads may have pow'r and place)
Are scandals rais'd and libels writ,
To prove your honesty and wit!
Think with yourself: Those worthy men,
You know, have suffer'd by your pan.
From them you've nothing but your due.
From thence, 'tis plain, your friends are sew.
Except myself, I know of none,
Besides the wise and good alone.
To set the case in fairer light,
My sable shall the rest recite;
Which (tho' unlike our present state)
I for the moral's sake relate.

A Bee, of cunning, not of parts,

Luxurious, negligent of arts,

Rapacious, arrogant, and vain,

Greedy of pow'r, but more of gain,

Corruption fow'd throughout the hive.

By petty rogues the great ones thrive.

As pow'r and wealth his views supply'd,
'Twas seen in overbearing pride.

With him loud impudence had merit;
The Bee of conscience wanted spirit;
And those who follow'd honour's rules,
Were laugh'd to scorn for squeamish sools.

Wealth claim'd distinction, favour, grace;
And poverty alone was base.

He treated industry with slight,
Unless he found his profit by't.

Rights, laws, and liberties gave way,
To bring his selfish schemes in play.

The swarm forgot the common toil,
To share the gleanings of his spoil.

While vulgar fouls, of narrow parts,

Waste life in low mechanic arts,

Let us (says he) to genius born,

The drudg'ry of our fathers scorn.

The wasp and drone, you must agree,

And nobly on their neighbours live.

A stubborn Bee, among the swarm,

With honest indignation warm,

Thus from his cell with zeal reply'd.

I flight thy frowns, and hate thy pride.

The laws our native rights protect;

Offending thee, I those respect.

Shall luxury corrupt the hive,

And none against the torrent strive?

Exert the honour of your race;

He builds his rise on your disgrace.

The PACK-HORSE and the CARRIER.

TO A YOUNG NOBLEMAN.

Begin, my Lord, in early youth,
To suffer, nay, encourage truth:
And blame me not for disrespect,
If I the flatt'rer's style reject;
With that, by menial tongues supply'd,
You're daily cocker'd up in pride.

The tree's distinguish'd by the fruit.

Be virtue then your first pursuit;

Set your great ancestors in view,

Like them deserve the title too;

Like them ignoble actions scorn:

Let virtue prove you greatly born.

Though with less plate their side-board shone,
Their conscience always was their own;
They ne'er at levees meanly fawn'd,
Nor was their honour yearly pawn'd;
Their hands, by no corruption stain'd,
The ministerial bribe disdain'd;

They ferv'd the crown with loyal zeal;
Yet, jealous of the public weal,
They stood the bulwark of our laws,
And wore at heart their country's cause;
By neither place or pension bought,
They spoke and voted as they thought.
Thus did your sires adorn their seat;
And such alone are truly great.

If you the paths of learning flight, You're but a dunce in stronger light; In foremost rank the coward plac'd, Is more conspicuously disgrac'd. If you to ferve a paltry end, To knavish jobbs can condescend, We pay you the contempt that's due; In that you have precedence too. Whence had you this illustrious name? From virtue and unblemisse'd fame. By birth the name alone descends; Your honour on yourfelf depends: Think not your coronet can hide Assuming ignorance and pride. Superior worth your rank requires; For that mankind reveres your fires: If you degen'rate from your race, Their merits heighten your disgrace.

A Carrier, ev'ry night and morn, Would fee his horses eat their corn: This funk the hostler's vails, 'tis true; But then his horses had their due. Were we fo cautious in all cases. Small gain would rife from greater places.

The manger now had all its measure; He heard the grinding teeth with pleasure: When all at once confusion rung; They fnorted, jostled, bit, and flung. A Pack-horse turn'd his head aside, Foaming, his eye-balls swell'd with pride.

Good gods! (fays he) how hard's my lot! Is then my high descent forgot? Reduc'd to drudg'ry and difgrace, (A life unworthy of my race) Must I too bear the vile attacks Of ragged scrubs, and vulgar hacks?

See scurvy ROAN, that brute ill-bred, Dares from the manger thrust my head! Shall I, who boaft a noble line, On offals of these creatures dine? Kick'd by old BALL! so mean a foe! My honour fuffers by the blow. NEWMARKET speaks my grandsire's fame, All jockeys still revere his name: . There yearly are his triumphs told, There all his massy plates inroll'd. Whene'er led forth upon the plain, You faw him with a liv'ry train; Returning too, with laurels crown'd, You heard the drums and trumpets found. Let it then, Sir, be understood, Respect's my due; for I have blood.

Vain-glorious fool! (the Carrier cry'd)
Respect was never paid to pride.
Know, 'twas thy giddy wilful heart
Reduc'd thee to this slavish part.
Did not thy headstrong youth distain
To learn the conduct of the rein?
Thus coxcombs, blind to real merit,
In vicious frolics fancy spirit.

Your sires I reverence; 'tis their due:

But, worthless sool, what's that to you?

Ask all the Carriers on the road,

They'll say thy keeping's ill bestow'd.

Then vaunt no more thy noble race,

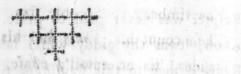

That neither mends thy strength or pace.

Would

Would you, when thieves were known abroad, Bring forth your treasures in the road? Would not the fool abet the stealth, Who rashly thus expos'd his wealth? Yet this you do, whene'er you play Among the gentlemen of prey.

Could fools to keep their own contrive, On what, on whom could gamesters thrive? Is it in charity you game, To fave your worthy gang from shame? Unless you furnish'd daily bread, Which way could idleness be fed? Could these professors of deceit Within the law no longer cheat, They must run bolder risks for prey, And strip the trav'ler on the way. Thus in your annual rents they share, And 'scape the noose from year to year. Consider, ere you make the bett, That fum might cross your tailor's debt. When you the pilf'ring rattle shake, Is not your honour too at stake? Must you not by mean lies evade To-morrow's duns from ev'ry trade?

By promifes fo often paid, Is yet your tailor's bill defray'd? Must you not pitifully fawn, To have your butcher's writ withdrawn? This must be done. In debts of play Your honour fuffers no delay: And not this year's and next year's rent The fons of rapine can content.

Look round. The wrecks of play behold, Estates dismember'd, mortgag'd, sold! Their owners, not to jails confin'd, Shew equal poverty of mind. Some, who the spoil of knaves were made, Too late attempt to learn their trade. No mercy's shewn to age or kind;
The general massacre is sign'd.
The park too shares the dreadful sate,
For duns grow louder at the gate.
Stern clowns, obedient to the 'Squire,
(What will not barb'rous hands for hire?)
With brawny arms repeat the stroke.
Fall'n are the elm and rev'rend oak.
Through the long wood loud axes sound,
And echo groans with ev'ry wound.

To see the desolation spread,

Pan drops a tear, and hangs his head:

His bosom now with fury burns:

Beneath his hoof the dice he sparns.

Cards too, in peevish passion torn,

The sport of whirling winds are borne.

To finalls invet'rate hate I bear,

Who spoil the verdure of the year;

The caterpillar I detest,

The blooming spring's voracious pest;

The locust too, whose rav'nous band

Spreads sudden famine o'er the land.

But what are these? The dice's throw

At once hath laid a forest low.

The cards are dealt, the bett is made,
And the wide park hath lost its shade.
Thus is my kingdom's pride defac'd,
And all its ancient glories waste.
All this (he cries) is Fortune's doing:
'Tis thus she meditates my ruin.
By Fortune, that false, sickle jade,
More havock in one hour is made,
Than all the hungry insect race,
Combin'd, can in an age deface.

Fortune, by chance, who near him past, O'erheard the vile aspersion cast.

Why, Pan (says she) what's all this rant?

'Tis ev'ry country-bubble's cant,
Am I the patroness of vice?

Is't I who cog or palm the dice?

Did I the shuffling art reveal,
To mark the cards, or range the deal?

In all th' employments men pursue,
I mind the least what gamesters do.

'There may (if computation's just)
One now and then my conduct trust:
I blame the fool, for what can I,
When ninety-nine my pow'r defy?

PLUTUS, CUPID, and TIME.

O F all the burdens man must bear,
Time seems most galling and severe:
Beneath this grievous load oppress'd,
We daily meet some friend distress'd.

What can one do? I rose at nine.
'Tis full six hours before we dine:
Six hours! no earthly thing to do!
Would I had doz'd in bed till two.

A pamphlet is before him spread,

And almost half a page is read;

Tir'd with the study of the day,

The slutt'ring sheets are toss'd away.

He opes his snuff-box, hums an air,

Then yawns, and stretches in his chair.

Not twenty, by the minute hand!

Good gods! fays he, my watch must stand!

How muddling 'tis on books to pore!

I thought I'd read an hour or more.

The morning, of all hours, I hate.

One can't contrive to rise too late.

214 FABLES.

To make the minutes faster run,
Then too his tiresome self to shun,
To the next cossee-house he speeds,
Takes up the news, some scraps he reads.
Saunt'ring, from chair to chair he trails;
Now drinks his tea, now bites his nails.
He spies a part'ner of his woe;
By chat afflictions lighter grow;
Each other's grievances they share,
And thus their dreadful hours compare.

Says Tom, fince all men must confess,.
That Time lies heavy more or less;
Why should it be so hard to get
Till two, a party at piquet?
Play might relieve the lagging morn:
By cards long wintry nights are borne.
Does not quadrille amuse the fair,
Night after night, throughout the year?
Vapours and spleen forgot, at play
They cheat uncounted hours away.

My case, says Will, then must be hard.
By want of skill from play debarr'd.
Courtiers kill Time by various ways;
Dependence wears out half their days.

How happy these, whose Time ne'er stands! Attendance takes it off their hands. Were it not for this curfed show'r. The park had whil'd away an hour. At court, without or place or view, I daily lofe an hour or two. It fully answers my defign, When I have pick'd up friends to dine, The tavern makes our burden light; Wine puts our Time and care to flight. At fix (hard case!) they call to pay. Where can one go? I hate the play. From fix to ten! Unless I sleep, One cannot spend the hours so cheap. The comedy's no fooner done. But some assembly is begun; Loit'ring from room to room I flray; Converse, but nothing hear or fay: Quite tir'd, from fair to fair I roam. So foon! I dread the thoughts of home. From thence, to quicken flow-pac'd night, Again my tavern friends invite: Here too our early mornings pals, Till droufy fleep retard the glass.

Thus they their wretched life bemoan,

And make each other's case their own.

Consider, friends, no hour rolls on,

But something of your grief is gone.

Were you to schemes of bus'ness bred,

Did you the paths of learning tread;

Your hours, your days, would fly too fast;

You'd then regret the minute past.

Time's sugitive and light as wind!

That load from off your spirits shake;

You'll own, and grieve for your mistake.

A while your thoughtless spleen suspend,

Then read, and (if you can) attend.

As PLUTUS, to divert his care,

Walk'd forth one morn to take the air,

Cupid o'ertook his strutting pace.

Each star'd upon the stranger's face,

Till recollection set 'em right;

For each knew t'other but by sight.

After some complimental talk,

Time met 'em, bow'd, and join'd their walk.

Their

Their chat on various subjects ran, But most, what each had done for man, PLUTUS assumes a haughty air, Just like our purse-proud fellows here, Let kings (fays he) let coblers tell, Whose gifts among mankind excel. Confider courts: What draws their train? Think you 'tis loyalty, or gain? That statesman hath the strongest hold, Whose tool of politics is gold. By that, in former reigns, 'tis faid, The knave in power hath fenates led. By that alone he fway'd debates, Enrich'd himself, and beggar'd states. Forego your boaft. You must conclude, That's most esteem'd that's most pursu'd. Think too, in what a woful plight That wretch must live whose pocket's light. Are not his hours by want deprest? Penurious care corrodes his breaft. Without respect, or love, or friends, His folitary day descends.

You might, fays Cupid, doubt my parts, My knowledge too in human hearts,

Should

Should I the pow'r of gold dispute, Which great examples might confute, I know, when nothing else prevails, Persuasive money seldom fails; That beauty too (like other wares) Its price, as well as conscience, bears. Then marriage (as of late profest) Is but a money-jobb at best. Confent, compliance may be fold: But love's beyond the price of gold. Smugglers there are, who, by retale, Expose what they call love, to fale, Such bargains are an arrant cheat; You purchase flatt'ry and deceit, Those who true love have ever try'd, (The common cares of life supply'd) No wants endure, no wishes make, But ev'ry real joy partake. All comfort on themselves depends; They want nor power, nor wealth, nor friends. Love then hath ev'ry bliss in store: 'Tis friendship, and 'tis something more. Each other ev'ry wish they give, Not to know love, is not to live.

Or love, or money (Time reply'd) Were men the question to decide, Would bear the prize: on both intent, My boon's neglected or mispent. 'Tis I who measure vital space, And deal out years to human race. Though little priz'd, and feldom fought; Without me love and gold are nought. How does the mifer time employ? Did I e'er see him life enjoy? By me forfook, the hoards he won, Are scatter'd by his lavish son. By me all useful arts are gain'd; Wealth, learning, wisdom is attain'd. Who then would think (fince fuch my pow'r) That e'er I knew an idle hour? So fubtle and fo fwift I fly, Love's not more fugitive than I. Who hath not heard coquettes complain Of days, months, years, mispent in vain? For time misus'd they pine and waste, And love's sweet pleasures never taste. Those who direct their time aright, If love or wealth their hopes excite,

In each pursuit sit hours employ'd,

And both by time have been enjoy'd.

How heedless then are mortals grown!

How little is their int'rest known!

In ev'ry view they ought to mind me;

For when once lost they never find me.

TO A MOTHER.

Conversing with your sprightly boys,
Your eyes have spoke the Mother's joys.
With what delight I've heard you quote
Their sayings in impersect note!
I grant, in body and in mind,

Nature appears profusely kind.

Trust not to that. Act you your part;

Imprint just morals on their heart;

Impartially their talents scan:

Just education forms the man.

Perhaps (their genius yet unknown)

Each lot of life's already thrown;

That this shall plead, the next shall fight,

The last affert the church's right.

I censure not the fond intent;

But how precarious is th' event!

By talents misapply'd and crost,

Consider, all your sons are lost.

One day (the tale's by MARTIAL penn'd)
A father thus address'd his friend.
To train my boy, and call forth sense,
You know I've stuck at no expence;
I've try'd him in the sev'ral arts,
(The lad no doubt hath latent parts)
Yet trying all, he nothing knows;
But, crab-like, rather backward goes.
Teach me what yet remains undone;
'Tis your advice shall six my son.
Sir, says the friend, I've weigh'd the matter;
Excuse me, for I scorn to slatter:
Make him (nor think his genius checkt)
A herald or an architect.

Perhaps (as commonly 'tis known)
He heard th' advice, and took his own.

The boy wants wit; he's fet to school, Where learning but improves the sool:
The college next must give him parts,
And cram him with the lib'ral arts.
Whether he blunders at the bar,
Or owes his infamy to war;
Or if by licence or degree
The sexton share the doctor's see;

Or from the pulpit by the hour He weekly floods of nonfense pour; We find (th' intent of nature foil'd) A tailor or a butcher spoil'd.

Thus ministers have royal boons Conferr'd on blockheads and buffoons: In spite of nature, merit, wit, Their friends for ev'ry post were fit.

But now let ev'ry muse confess That merit finds its due success. Th' examples of our days regard; Where's virtue feen without reward? Diffinguish'd and in place you find Defert and worth of ev'ry kind. Survey the rev'rend bench, and fee, Religion, learning, piety: The patron, ere he recommends, Sees his own image in his friend's. We of all times corrupt have heard, When paltry minions were preferr'd; -When all great offices, by dozens, Were fill'd by brothers, fons, and cousins.

What

What matter ignorance and pride?

The man was happily ally'd.

Provided that his clerk was good,

What though he nothing understood?

In church and state, the forry race

Grew more conspicuous fools in place.

Such heads, as then a treaty made,

Had bungled in the cobbler's trade.

Consider, patrons, that such elves
Expose your folly with themselves.
'Tis yours, as 'tis the parent's care,
To six each genius in its sphere.
Your partial hand can wealth dispense,
But never give a blockhead sense.

An Owl of magisterial air,

Of solemn voice, of brow austere,

Assum'd the pride of human race,

And bore his wisdom in his face;

Not to depreciate learned eyes,

I've seen a pedant look as wise.

Trite sentences, hard terms of art,
To vulgar ears seem'd so prosound,
They fancy'd learning in the sound.

The school had same: the crowded place

With these the Swan's maternal care
Had sent her scarce-fledg'd cygnet heir:

The pupils now, advanc'd in age, Were call'd to tread life's busy stage; And to the master 'twas submitted, That each might to his part be fitted.

The Swan (fays he) in arms shall shine: The foldier's glorious toil be thine.

The Cock shall mighty wealth attain:

Go, feek it on the stormy main.

The court shall be the Spider's sphere: Pow'r, fortune, shall reward him there.

In music's art the Ass's fame

Shall emulate Corelli's name.

Each took the part that he advis'd,

And all were equally despis'd.

A Farmer, at his folly mov'd,

The dull preceptor thus reprov'd.

Blockhead (fays he) by what you've done, One would have thought 'em each your fon: For parents, to their offspring blind,
Consult nor parts nor turn of mind;
But ev'n in infancy decree
What this, what t'other son should be.
Had you with judgment weigh'd the case,
Their genius thus had fix'd their place.
The Swan had learnt the sailor's art;
The Cock had play'd the soldier's part;
The Spider in the weaver's trade
With credit had a fortune made;
But for the sool, in ev'ry class
The blockhead had appear'd an Ass.

Had fate a kinder lot assign'd, And form'd me of the lap-dog kind, I then, in higher life employ'd, Had indolence and ease enjoy'd;

And, like a gentleman, careft, Had been the lady's fav'rite guest. Or were I fprung from spaniel line, Was his fagacious nostril mine, By me, their never-erring guide, From wood and plain their feasts supply'd, Knights, squires, attendant on my pace, Had shar'd the pleasures of the chace. Endu'd with native strength and fire, Why call'd I not the lion fire? A lion! fuch mean views I fcorn. Why was I not of woman born? Who dares with reason's pow'r contend? On man we brutal flaves depend: To him all creatures tribute pay, And lux'ry employs his day.

An Ox by chance o'erheard his moan,

And thus rebuk'd the lazy drone.

Dare you at partial fate repine?

How kind's your lot compar'd with mine!

Decreed to toil, the barb'rous knife

Hath fever'd me from focial life;

Urg'd by the stimulating goad,

I drag the cumbrous waggon's load:

'Tis mine to tame the stubborn plain, Break the stiff foil, and house the grain; Yet I without a murmur bear The various labours of the year. But then consider, that one day, (Perhaps the hour's not far away) You, by the duties of your post, Shall turn the spit when I'm the roaft; And for reward shall share the feast, I mean, shall pick my bones at least. 'Till now, th' aftonish'd Cur replies, I look'd on all with envious eyes. How false we judge by what appears! All creatures feel their fev'ral cares. If thus you mighty beast complains, Perhaps man knows superior pains. Let envy then no more torment: Think on the Ox, and learn content. Thus faid; close following at her heel, With chearful heart he mounts the wheel;

the last the state of the last chief out

The RAVENS, the SEXTON, and the EARTH-WORM.

TO LAURA.

AURA, methinks you're over-nice. True. Flatt'ry is a shocking vice; Yet fure, whene'er the praise is just, One may commend without difgust. Am I a privilege deny'd, Indulg'd by ev'ry tongue beside? How fingular are all your ways! A woman, and averse to praise! If 'tis offence fuch truths to tell, Why do your merits thus excel? Since then I dare not speak my mind, A truth conspicuous to mankind; Though in full lustre ev'ry grace Distinguish your celestial face; Though beauties of inferior ray (Like stars before the orb of day)

Turn

Turn pale and fade: I check my lays, Admiring what I dare not praise.

If you the tribute due disdain, The muse's mortifying strain Shall, like a woman, in mere spite, Set beauty in a moral light.

Though such revenge might shock the ear

Of many a celebrated fair;

I mean that superficial race

Whose thoughts ne'er reach beyond their face;

What's that to you? I but displease

Such ever-girlish ears as these.

Virtue can brook the thoughts of age,

That lasts the same through ev'ry stage.

Though you by time must suffer more

Than ever woman lost before;

To age is such indiff'rence shown,

As if your face were not your own.

Were you by Antoninus taught?

Or is it native strength of thought,

That thus, without concern or fright,

You view yourself by reason's light?

Those eyes of so divine a ray,

What are they? Mould'ring, mortal clay.

Thofe

Those features, cast in heav'nly mould,
Shall, like my coarser earth, grow old;
Like common grass, the fairest flow'r
Must feel the hoary season's pow'r.

How weak, how vain is human pride!

Dares man upon himself conside?

The wretch who glories in his gain,

Amasses heaps on heaps in vain.

Why lose we life in anxious cares,

To lay in hoards for future years?

Can those (when tortur'd by disease)

Chear our sick heart, or purchase ease?

Can those prolong one gasp of breath,

Or calm the troubled hour of death?

What's beauty? Call ye that your own?

A flow'r that fades as foon as blown.

What's man in all his boaft of fway?

Perhaps the tyrant of a day.

Alike the laws of life take place

Through ev'ry branch of human race.

The monarch of long regal line

Was rais'd from dust as frail as mine.

Can he pour health into his veins,

Or cool the fever's restless pains?

Can he (worn down in nature's course)

New-brace his feeble nerves with force?

Can he (how vain is mortal's pow'r!)

Stretch life beyond the destin'd hour?

Consider, man; weigh well thy frame;

The king, the beggar is the same.

Dust form'd us all. Each breathes his day,

Beneath a venerable yew,

That in the lonely church-yard grew,

Two Ravens fat. In folemn croak

Thus one his hungry friend bespoke.

Then finks into his native clay.

Methinks I scent some rich repast;
The savour strengthens with the blast;
Snuff then, the promis'd feast inhale;
I taste the carcase in the gale.
Near yonder trees, the farmer's steed,
From toil and daily drudg'ry freed,
Hath groan'd his last. A dainty treat!
To birds of taste delicious meat.

A Sexton, bufy at his trade.

To hear their chat suspends his spade.

Can

Death

Death struct him with no farther thought, Than merely as the fees he brought. Was ever two fuch blund'ring fowls, In brains and manners less than owls! Blockheads, fays he, learn more respect. Know ye on whom ye thus reflect? In this same grave (who does me right, Must own the work is strong and tight). The 'Squire that you fair hall posses'd, To-night shall lay his bones at reft. Whence could the gross mistake proceed? The 'Squire was somewhat fat indeed. What then? The meanest bird of prey Such want of sense could ne'er betray: For fure some difference must be found (Suppose the smelling organ found) In carcasses (say what we can) Or where's the dignity of man?

With due respect to human race,

The Ravens undertook the case.

In such similitude of scent,

Man ne'er could think reslexions meant.

As epicures extol a treat,

And seem their sav'ry words to eat,

They

They prais'd dead horse, luxurious sood, The ven'son of the prescient brood.

The Sexton's indignation mov'd,

The mean comparison reprov'd;

Their undiscerning palate blam'd,

Which two-legg'd carrion thus defam'd.

Reproachful speech from either side

The want of argument supply'd:

They rail, revile: as often ends

The contest of disputing friends.

Hold, says the Fowl; since human pride
With consutation ne'er comply'd,
Let's state the case, and then refer
The knotty point: for taste may err.

As thus he spoke, from out the mold

An Earth-worm, huge of size, unroll'd

His monstrous length. They strait agree

To chuse him as their referee.

So to th' experience of his jaws,

Each states the merits of the cause.

He paus'd, and with a folemn tone

Thus made his fage opinion known.

On carcases of ev'ry kind This maw hath elegantly din'd; Provok'd by luxury or need, On beaft, or fowl, or man, I feed: Such small distinction's in the savour, By turns I chuse the fancy'd flavour. Yet I must own (that human beast) A glutton is the rankest feast. Man, cease this boast; for human pride Hath various tracts to range beside. The prince who kept the world in awe, The judge whose dictate fix'd the law, The rich, the poor, the great, the small, Are levell'd. Death confounds 'em all. Then think not that we reptiles share Such cates, fuch elegance of fare: The only true and real good Of man was never vermin's food. 'Tis feated in th' immortal mind; Virtue distinguishes mankind, And that (as yet ne'er harbour'd here) Mounts with the foul we know not where.
